94th AWARDS: ITALY REPRESENTED BY FRANCIS FORD COPPOLA WINERY IN GOLDEN BOTTLES MADE BY BOTTEGA S.p.A.

The 94th Awards did not award Paolo Sorrentino's "It was the hand of God" as best international film, nevertheless Italy was represented for the second year running by two great wines. Francis Ford Coppola Winery provided a limited edition of a Chardonnay and a Cabernet Sauvignon to be served in the occasion of the gala dinner of this edition of the Awards. The bottles were produced by Bottega S.p.A. and are characterised by their mirrored golden colour. They are made with a triple water-based varnish, without chemical solvents, entirely completed in Italy.

Both bottles have been designed and produced in limited edition to give a visual tribute to the talent, passion and hard work that distinguishes the entire movie world.

The partnership between Sandro Bottega and Francis Ford Coppola began 30 years ago, thanks to Stefania Sandrelli, a friend of both. Since then there have been numerous encounters that go beyond wine and its technical aspects.
